

Collective Funding for Diamond Open Access: Insights from the Open Library of Humanities

OLH Open Library of Humanities

Scholar-led.
Community owned.

The Open Library of Humanities (OLH) is a scholar-led, not-for-profit academic publisher based at Birkbeck, University of London. We will never charge authors or readers to publish and access peer-reviewed research.

For free. For everyone. Forever.

We believe that scholarship should be academic-led and community-owned – our goal is to liberate university research from commercial control. We've spent 10 years building a sustainable business model for funding diamond open access publishing, proving that it can be affordable and scalable.

35 diamond OA journals.

We launched as a publisher in 2015 with just 7 journals. HSS editors apply to join our programme and flip their journals OA from subscription models.

We developed our own software.

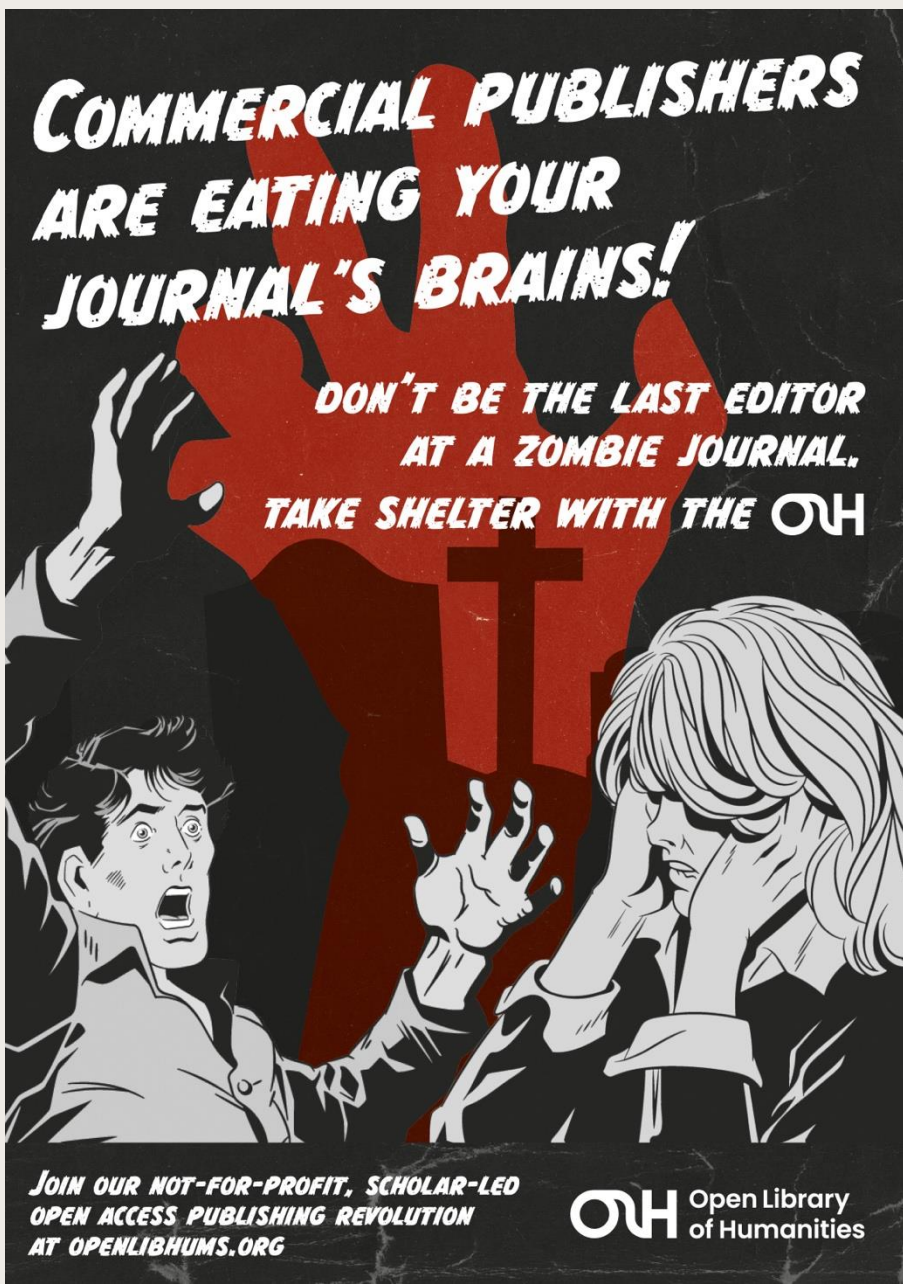

Our publishing platform is used by 400+ journals worldwide, with 50 clients using our hosted service. Clients include California Digital Library, UCL Press, University of Michigan Press, Iowa State Digital Press, Society for Clinical Data Management, University of Arizona Libraries.

Funded by 340+ libraries.

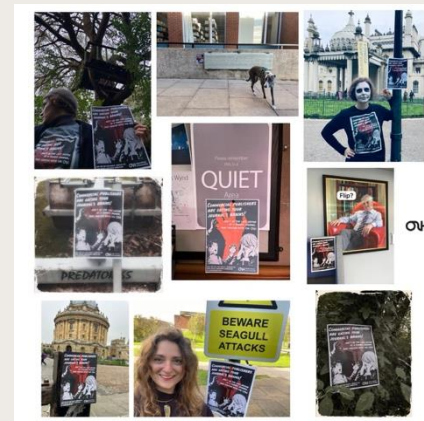

Our library members support our publishing activities. We are not-for-profit and our technology is open source under the Affero General Public License (AGPLv1).

How it works

Many universities and libraries contribute small, affordable sums.

02

These funds cover OLH publishing expenses and journal funding.

OLH journals publish research that is archived, secure and free to access.

OLH Diamond Open Access with a consortial funding model

How member support drives OLH development.

Standard-level OLH membership sustains our publishing activities and helps build open-source publishing technologies that benefit the entire academic community.

Higher-level OLH membership helps us expand. We use these funds to rescue high-profile titles that are at risk from commercialisation (which threatens their academic integrity) as well as journals that are ceasing publication due to austerity cuts to humanities research funding.

academic journals.

GET STARTED

01

Publishing cutting-edge research.

We publish leading academic journals that are openly available – free to read, published with no embargos, and with no author payments. We believe that high-quality research should be available to all.

02

Giving back to research communities.

We work closely with libraries and funders to support the transition from a profit-driven commercial publishing model to a community-governed publishing model. All funds are invested in our journals and the research communities that make them possible.

03

Building a sustainable future for academic journals.

Our expertise as university-based publishers places us at the heart of the academic community. We provide a sustainable future for academic journals, providing financial, legal and technological support.

HOW IT WORKS

Existing funding

OJC top-up funding

NO FUNDING

FULL OJC SUPPORT

PARTIAL FUNDING

PARTIAL OJC FUNDING

LIBRARY MEMBERSHIP FUNDING

TOP-UP ONLY

OJC funding supplements existing journal support rather than replacing it.

Journals already funded through library partnership models (e.g. OLH) receive reduced top-up funding to avoid duplicate support.

Journals receive £5,000–£25,000 per year, depending on size, publishing volume, costs, and existing funding.

For OLH journals, OJC funding provides supplementary support for publishing infrastructure and production, while core operations remain funded by OLH library members.

Sustainability & scalability.

Working closely with our library members, we have the power to take a stand against exploitative commercial publishing practices and invest in progressive change in scholarly communications.

OLH demonstrates that diamond OA can be:

- Affordable – collectively funded by library partnerships
- Transparent – clear cost breakdowns and nonprofit governance
- Scalable – growing journals, infrastructure, and partnerships

Future investment focuses on:

- expanding editorial and technical capacity
- improving open-source infrastructure (Janeway)
- supporting journal flips away from commercial publishers
- strengthening collective initiatives such as the Open Journals Collective
